Burton News

Dear Burton News,

James Carden (1795-1873) of Burton

I hope that some of your readers will be good enough to write to me about James Carden (1795-1873) of Burton.

James was the eldest son of a successful London barrister (also James) and Mary Walter, eldest daughter of the founder of The Times newspaper. Until the age of about 45 he was a successful and prosperous London solicitor. His youngest brother, Robert (later Sir R.W. Carden, Bt. of Molesey), was a successful banker, stockbroker and alderman who became Lord Mayor of London in 1857. Another of the brothers, a barrister, was the founder of the Kensal Green Cemetery Company and achieved fame on that account.

In about 1840 James suddenly abandoned London and went to live in Burton. Why? That is a mystery as yet unsolved. Within a few years he had established a commercial flower-growing business in Burton to which there were many references in the local newspaper, and he was living as a 'gentleman' in The Mansion House (probably familiar to most of your readers). If this was a deliberate and voluntary change of occupation, all well and good, but why, as a Londoner, choose Burton?

Please would readers note that letters for these pages must include a valid name & address. This can be with-held from publication on request. We will not publish any anonymous letters, or material which, in the opinion of the Editorial Committee, is of an offensive or defamatory nature. BN reserves the right to edit letters & articles in the interests of magazine space.

A fascinating aspect of his life in Burton is that, though he never married, he had a daughter named Sarah Robinson by his housekeeper Mary Robinson. He brought the child up as his own, and in due course she married George Mayor, a stockbroker, at the house of his brother the baronet in West Molesey, London. Amazing to report, it is believed that George was descended from Princess Amelia, one of the daughters of King George III.

We would like to thank Kath Hayhurst for her very great help in studying James Carden. This is a most intriguing story! In exchange for any information, however apparently insignificant, that your readers may have with regard to James Carden or his friends in the neighbourhood, including Thomas Kew of Dale, Isaac Atkinson, the Rev David Samuel Spedding, and the Rev Thomas Crofton, I will gladly send them a draft of the full biography which we intend to write and submit to the Cumbria Family History Society for publication in their Newsletter, and a copy of his will, which mentions a great many other local people.

Yours sincerely Arthur Carden

PHONE: BURTON IN KENDAL 01524 781447 Dear BN,

I would like to take issue with Mr Charles Dobson's criticism of the apostrophe (Sep BN). The first apostrophe in Today's is technically correct as re tomato's belong to today.

The second apostrophe can also be decreed correct as it represents the abbreviation in the spelling of tomatoes.

The apostrophe in Cloggy's is also correct, as the garden (not shown in last month's photo) belongs to Cloggy.

Apologies Sir Charles, I always believed Times readers would be well-versed in the art of punctuation.

Yours, Brian "Cloggy" Martin

Thanks!

I would like to thank everyone in Mowbray Drive, Burton, for their kind donations in my July collection for Marie Curie Cancer Care, we raised £35.00 which was forwarded to Marie Curie.

I would like to thank all the kind people on St. James' Drive (nos 1-32) who donated to Marie Curie during the July door-to-door collection. A sum of £45.00 was raised. Thank you for your generosity.

Outdoors

On August 22, on the 'secret path' through Dalton woods, I could pick a ripe raspberry with my left hand and a ripe bramble with my right. Here was the exact watershed between summer and autumn. Some years it's distinct, in others a gradual slide into cooler, shorter days. One year, round about 1979, some of us were cragging on the limestone scar at Fairy Steps, above Storth, in short sleeves, in full sunshine like this year's early September. In mid afternoon a wind blew suddenly chill from Morecambe Bay, the clouds had darkened, and hailstones rattled off our rucksacks as we walked back through the woods. And we said to each other, 'That's it - another summer's gone.'

The evening before our fruiteating walk this year, we were bowling at Burneside. I hadn't noticed the cloud to the south massing up into an enormous wall of almost purple dark-grey. Big drops fell and a bolt of lightning made a dazzling white crack in the cloud. This dividing of the weather was almost on cue - southerly breezes and balmy air had turned chill the day before.

The season signals itself in all sorts of ways. It would be handy if the birds complied. Our swifts left this year on August 4, a fortnight ahead of their usual. (Why?) The swallows usually linger till mid September. About the same time you can be lucky enough to see an osprey resting on a tree by the north shore of Leighton Moss, on its way to North Africa. Traditionally we look to the trees for unmistakable signs of autumn. This year I first saw horse-chestnut leaves rusting orange on August 18, down Main Street near Green Dragon Farm.

I almost wrote 'warning signs' of autumn because it always seems too early for comfort, after too short and quick a summer. It's a mixed blessing. We want this happiest, easiest of seasons to go on for a few more weeks. If there was no seasonal change, we'd be condemned to the monotony of the tropics. In Sri Lanka the rubber trees were the only ones that shed their leaves. In our garden the jam-fruit trees (about as big as elders or rowans) never lost their leaves at all. They simply changed them gradually and fruited from time to time. What it all meant was that it was hard, looking back, to place an event in a sequence. Had a birthday been at the close of a calendar year, or nearer its beginning? In what month did we make that special trip? Hard to tell when the days never changed their length.

So I rejoice in the seasons on the whole - although if I was a farmer I'd want the cold and waterlogged times to last less long, and if I was a bird, I'd want seeds and fruits to feed on all the time. Whoever we are, we'd rather autumn didn't begin in August, as it did this year. 124.5 mm. of rain were picked up by our gauge, compared with 87.5 in 2005 and 80.5 in 2007. You probably remember last year's images on TV of vegetable harvests ungathered in flooded fields. Our August rainfall was 185.5, the highest for twenty years. Before this year's Indian summer that set in on September 8, the fields round Moss House had turned into a shallow lake, and some cows were being taken indoors because the fields were too sodden to browse. As for the fruits, the rasps were plentiful and sweet in June/July. The brambles have little flavour because there has been so little sun to help them make their sugars.

Roger Reports...

As Autumn gets into its stride Council work gets busier. But, unfortunately, perhaps, we seem to have more workers. When I became Chairman of Cumbria County Council my first question was how many people work for us? After brushing aside such inevitable responses from my fellow councillors as 'half on good day' - about 16,500 was the answer. As 'about' was not good enough for me, further pressure elicited '19,227 but there might be 222 more'. So I have now asked if 222 'employees' are hiding somewhere and only emerge to get their pay cheques! We'll see.

Certainly, if we are to achieve the lowest possible Council tax for 2010-11 in the face of a Central Government annual grant being virtually stagnant our 'establishment' will have to be cut - or, rather, in South Lakeland's language - 'personnel could be subjected to organisational re-engineering'. Who on earth comes up with such 'officialese'? Unfortunately my economy gesture to drive myself to functions rather than use the chauffeur came up against a welter of opposition on the lines that it showed disrespect to the office and the County. At the County Show I noticed that chauffeured 'dignitaries' included the Town Mayor of Kendal who heads a Parish Council. So in September I compromised and allowed myself to be ceremoniously driven for Royal Visits which in September included The Princess Royal at Lowther and Princess Alexander at Muncaster. My other Chairman's duties included an NHS awards dinner at Rheged, Yorkshire County Council Civic Dinner, Allerdale Civic service, Workington Heritage festival, Keswick Commonwealth Games, Ambleside Inter-faith meeting, Deaf Association presentation. Royal British Legion at Ambleside, Cockermouth School visit and a Scouts Evening at Ambleside.

At least my journeying allows me to survey the appalling state of the roads in Cumbria and neighbouring counties. But following renewed pleas at the August Parish Council I did get the hole by the Butcher's shop and some other pot holes 'temporarily' mended within 18 hours. A full resurfacing of Main Street is still some time off though the A6070 at Clawthorpe will have thorough repairs in this financial year. Surface dressing of Tarn Lane is also high on the 2010 list with Station Lane lower down. Also the new dropped kerb work has been done. And I know that you will keep letting me know of many more needed repairs.

Further afield it was reported that a Northern Relief Road for Kendal (first mooted in the 1920s!) would 'not eliminate congestion and the costs of such a scheme substantially outweighs the benefits'. Also a 'park and ride' proposal is rejected on 'grounds of financial case (sic!)'. But a survey conducted by Kendal Town Council found that two thirds of the public are in favour of turning the New Road Car Park into a green sward - which should perhaps not be surprising as most of the respondents might have been Kendalians who do not need to use the car park. A perhaps more socially useful plan is to create what, again in 'new speak' is called a 'foyer' for vulnerable young people. A 'foyer', I am told, is semi-sheltered housing and will include 'drop-in' social facilities for youngsters which may keep some of them off the streets. But, if they are out and about we will know more about them and all of us as (even) more CCTV Cameras are proposed for Kendal. But do we need them?

More encouragingly Cumbrian schools A and GCSE results were the best ever with Dallam, Queen Katherine at Kendal and Queen Elizabeth School, Kirkby Lonsdale all appearing in The Times list of 150 top achieving schools. Congratulations to all 'stakeholders' i.e. pupils and teachers.

Older folk may also be heartened by Cumbria's Health profile which puts South Lakeland in the top 'quintile' ('Councilese' again!) for life expectation. Local men can expect to live to 78 and the ladies to 83. Across the Bay in Barrow, Cumbria's most deprived district, the respective figures are 75 and 78. So we can least be grateful for that.

Burton Pre-School

On behalf of the Pre-School Committee could I please thank the four people who worked so hard behind the scenes to make this year's Burton Ball another success.

Helen, Nicola, Kaye and Nicola put in a tremendous amount of time and effort between them, and the rest of our committee certainly appreciated it. It is not often that doing charity work results in a touch of glamour in our case it usually means giving up free mornings to cover staff shortages!

Our committee this year have all worked without fuss to give our children quality experiences (Hallowe'en Party, Sports Day float, etc.) and raised money through successful events (Burton Ball, New-to-You Sale, etc.) So a big well done to those committee members who will be leaving us as their children start school, and to those who are hanging on in there!

An Opinion...

Comments on the goings-on at the Parish Council...

GOOD THINGS

Even though the meeting contained its usual element of extreme boring (one person present declaring she lost the will to live halfway through the evening), much that was positive oozed slowly out, and looking through her notes, A.O. finds with surprised satisfaction that it was in fact a forward-moving event.:-

Charles in Sardinia (or was it Corsica?)

No, this in no way influenced the tenor of the evening. Richard Davy nobly stepped in and took the Minutes. Hopefully Charles was swigging the local bevvy on his terrace overlooking the Tyrrhenian Sea while Richard sat toiling over a hot stove, so to speak.

Autumn Fair at BMH

The PCllrs agreed that they should have a stand at the Autumn Fair, giving an opportunity to meet Burtonians.

Police Report

As A.O. approached the Hall, a Police van pulled up beside her. Was there to be a Police presence at the Council meeting at last? Or was A.O. herself about to be arrested? Needless to say, it wasn't either and the driver of the vehicle disappeared into the bowels of the Hall, presumably to talk to the Boys' Brigade, no doubt a more discerning audience. All this preamble just to tell you there wasn't a Police report. And no Tawny Owl (or whatever the B.B. equivalent is) appeared in handcuffs.

PUBLIC FORUM

Burton Character Appraisal

That's the title of the document, in draft, that many of us in the conservation area of Burton have already received. Graham Darlington, its author, was present to introduce it to the PC. Graham is clearly very proud of it, and the PC was clearly impressed. It defines the architectural and historical merit of the buildings in the village, and gives an outline of the settlement's history. Green Dragon is missed out, as a canny resident pointed out. But it will be put into the document that goes before the relevant Cttee later.

What happens next? wonders A.O. Don't we already know which buildings are graded as of Special interest? Has Graham added any others? At an earlier meeting G. had claimed that SLDC would step in if any of these buildings showed obvious signs of deterioration. He gave as example the removal of ivy. A.O. questioned him about the way ivy was steadily creeping across the south face of the Royal. Was action going to be taken? But he seemed to feel that very little deterioration had happened to this iconic building. What about the broken windows at the back? a PCIIr asked. G.D. said it was four months since he had visited the site.

N.B Burtonians might be interested to know that the Royal is for sale (£450,000 it was stated) and that several potential buyers have shown interest. But not, it was emphasised, in its remaining an inn.

The same PCIIr made the important point that the car park is a vital as a place for residents to park, there being so little parking space in the village. He made a strong case for it to be allowed to remain so.

Main Street

A resident thanked the PC for action that had been taken to patch poor surfaces in Main Street. All were pleased the drain had been repaired outside the Butchers. In fact all were pleased with the outcome altogether. And action taken to effect the repairs was indeed prompt. End of Public Forum

Banks

As promised, part of PC funds have been moved into a Bonus Savings Account, thus putting some interest into the pot. Bank Credit for the Bank of Ireland stands at A-, and NatWest at AA.

Grass cutting

It may be possible for the lengthsman to take over grass-cutting, replacing the present grass-cutters. All saw this as a great advantage, as indeed it would be. Mr Holmes, the lengthsman, commands respect from all who have noticed the huge improvement to the appearance of the village since he took over. It was also remarked that the highway steward had now apparently been moved to other duties, and approaches should be made to CCC to direct the steward funding towards the cost of our lengthsman.

The Playground

It was reported that a public-spirited resident had volunteered his services to mow the playground regularly. Once again, though all were grateful, the horrid implications of voluntary service were raised. Insurance was the one mentioned, but there are plenty of others, stranglers of goodwill and altruism (had to get that bit in. It's an A.O. special topic!) The good news was that the Playground cttee expects the arrival of playground equipment this Monday (21 Sept). A zip (I think that's a flying fox), a basket swing and "some bouncy things". What a triumph, after sterling efforts by many people.

Slape Lane

It will come as little surprise that we were informed by a PCIIr that there's no CCC funding for upgrading the above. Positive action was suggested though, including the thought that it might be possible to make this a community effort.

The Green Dragon bus shelter

It will face outwards, and by a vote of 5/4 be painted holly green. With luck it may have a more comfortable seat "for old ladies" as a PCIIr remarked. He of course will stand, supposing he ever sinks to the indignity of travelling by bus.

Parish Plan

Nothing happening, apparently. But A.O. made an error last time. The post for the speeding thing wasn't nicked. That was a joke. Where's my sense of humour! Nevertheless it's around somewhere, and that somewhere isn't at Burton.

The Fun Run

One of the organisers reported that the event had raised £600 for the Recreation Trust, and £100 for First Responders.

A New Parish Clerk

A short list has been drawn up from a surprisingly impressive number of applicants. More news next time. A.S.

Going Green - Oct '09

"Ugh. That's disgusting." I slam the lid back onto the compost bin. While we've been away all summer, nature has gone into full throttle on the vegetable peelings. It's like a creepy crawly version of Noah's Ark; there seems to be at least two of every insect on earth crammed under the lid. It's all wriggling about and it smells like a cow's bum. Even the eggs have laid eggs. I'm not going to compost anything any more. It's too foul.

After dinner, I scrape the remains and peelings into the regular bin, announcing to the kids that I'm through with composting. There's a sharp intake of breath. Even the Carbon-Toddler raises her eyebrows. "I don't care about the planet any more. I'm through with being an eco worrier," I tell them. "I'm going back to not being green. It was more convenient...and less...wriggly."

"But..." the youngest Carbon-Copy volunteers..." "Talk to the hand," I tell him. The conscience isn't engaging any more.

The drought in Kenya is in every newspaper. National Geographic does a feature on Venice; more at risk of flooding than ever before. The miserable British weather continues. Global warming is ramping up. But I don't care. I'm not being green any more. The Guardian brings me news of the 10:10 campaign. I read all about it, devouring every celebrity endorsement, and despair that so few of the population have signed up. But I don't join myself because I'm done with trying to help the planet. My mum has bought a new car. My brother's flying to his second home in France again. It confirms I've made the right decision. There's no point in making any effort when everyone else undoes it. I only bother to recycle the papers so I don't have to digest news of any fresh environmental disasters.

Carbon-Lite is down at the compost bin, shovelling the earth out of the bottom of the barrel. It's not like the top of the bin; all wormy and horrible. It's fresh, moist and plentiful earth, which he spreads on top of our thin, weedy soil. It's new life; all healthy and organic. I pick out bits of plastic shrink wrapping and wonder at how all those potato peelings, banana skins and egg boxes have miraculously transformed into this. I've always bought my compost in bags from the garden centre before. Suddenly I can see the results of our efforts and it feels good. Like those little green shoots they talk about in a recession. It's not going to change the world, or save the world, but it is undeniably a positive start. "Ok," I say to the Carbon-Copies. "I might start composting again." They jump up and down and cheer. In the compost bin beside them, the worms are wriggling with delight.

Burton Children's Playground

The Burton playground committee is doing very well at present. As you are all aware we have been able to purchase our first lot of new equipment which is being installed on Monday 21 September, and we are not sure how long this is going to take so if all villagers could bear with us if they find the park is closed when they arrive to use it. We promise you the result will be well worth the wait!

We are hoping to hold a open day up on the park once the work is complete, which we hope all members of the village and surrounding areas will come to for a fun day out. Details of this event will be put up around village at a later date. [Ed: Don't forget to tell BN too!]

We would like to say a big well done and thank you to Kevin Preston who has now finished his marathons in a fantastic time. We are all very pleased and grateful for all the funds he raised for the playground, so once again a big thank you Kevin and well done!

We would also like to say a big thank you to all villagers who have helped us raise money, so far we are very grateful for all donations and help we receive - we can not thank you enough, but we still need to raise a bit more money towards picnic tables or benches etc. If you would be able to help in anyway by donating money or even a bench or picnic table please get in touch with us on 01524 784702. Thank you!

Historical Footnote by Roger Bingham

'Danger' Politics at Burton in 1911

When I was young, older people used to look back on the early years of the twentieth century as a Golden Age. As they had subsequently experienced two World Wars along with huge social and political upheavals no one could blame them. Moreover this rosy tinted view has persisted through our continued enjoyment of such works as Oscar Wilde's Importance of Being Earnest or of P.G. Woodehouse's stories about Bertie Wooster which were set in the period. Yet the years before the 1914-18 War were far from tranquil. In 1911 Burton's celebrations of the Coronation of George V were marred by a long-running railway workers strike which led to an excursion to London to see the decorations being cancelled. Fortunately the children's trip to Morecambe went ahead, though, it being a typical summer, the day was spoiled by 'incessant rain'.

Political current affairs and, arguably, fairly accurate fears for the future were expressed at a meeting, in October 1911, of the Dalton, Holme and Burton Habitation of the Primrose League. The League had been established as a memorial to the Conservative Prime Minister Benjamin Disraeli who had died in 1881 and was named after 'the primrose - his favourite flower'. Our local Habitation must have been one of the longest established as at the meeting Miss G. N. Hornby of Dalton Hall was presented with many gifts 'on her retirement after 25 years from her position as Dame President of the branch'. She received many 'little tokens of esteem' including 'a beautiful jewelled pendant, two photo frames, an aneroid clock in a silver case, an album containing the names of subscribers and a rose bowl with an inscription commemorating her role as Dame from 1885-1911'. Appropriately, in her speech of thanks Miss Hornby said that she had 'not had the slightest idea of the presentation which had come as a surprise' and 'the pendant was exactly what she would have chosen for herself'. Led by Major Argles from Heversham, members then got down to political business. At the time Conservatives invariably called themselves Unionists because they wanted to preserve the Union of Great Britain and Ireland which seemed to be threatened by an Irish Home Rule Bill currently being debated in Parliament. Major Argles predicted that even partial independence for Ireland would lead to the break up of the British Empire. He claimed that 'the Bill deserved to be wrecked on the score of financial difficulties alone '. But an even more 'dangerous situation would arise' if Irish Protestants, not all of whom lived in the north, were to be ruled by the Roman Catholic majority. 'They must not forget that in the South of Ireland there were many loyal Irishmen and that if Home Rule was given there was a danger of civil war. There would be such turmoil in Ulster as had never been seen before. Then there was the danger of complications with a foreign power. With a separatist government in Ireland that country might become the base of attack on this country. Faced with this danger he urged them to be united and firm in their attack on the present government'. This peroration was greeted with 'thunderous applause' from Burton's Unionists. 'Afterwards' the report continued 'the concert was then proceded with led by a party from Barrow, Miss Hoggarth being the accompanist'.

Correction to September Historical Footnote

I've been informed that my Sept Footnote actually related to a different Burton: the hamlet of the same name near Warcop. I got the information from a document written by a descendant in the 1930s who lived at Hale and who also clearly thought that the Burton was our Burton given that a branch of the family lived only a mile or two away at Beetham. I'm grateful for being advised of the error in the earlier document.

Barbara and Jack Winrow would like to say a big thank you to all the people who came to their At Home, also to all those who gave such generous donations. Thanks also to all our helpers who worked really hard throughout the day. Thanks to Michael the milkman, Gill and Akis, and our good friend Hilary who made the delicious scones for the cream teas. This was again a huge success, and raised £760 for the N.S.P.C.C. in Cumbria.

(On Seeing a Circus Tent at Grasmere, August 2009)

When the circus came to Lakeland In the days before T.V.,
The town-crier rang his handbell
And invited us to see
Strange animals from countries far.

And in those distant lands,
Did elephants parade the streets
And dance to shrill brass bands?
Did lions pace their iron dens
And roar to man's commands?
Did monkeys dress in human clothes,
And seals perform handstands?

And when the show was over,
The Big Top packed away,
With animals in crowded vans,
To do it all next day,
Did we, with wondrous tales to tell,
Return to meadow, wood and fell Where field-mice scurried through the hay
And squirrels gathered nuts by day,
And new-born lambs gambolled at play Did we condone their freedom stolen,
To serve our fantasy?

HOMEMAKERS REUNION

A group of 28 ladies gathered at the Memorial Hall on the evening of 9 September for a reunion of Homemakers. Esther Nodder welcomed everyone and gave a brief history of the Homemakers group, which she started with a team of helpers in the village around twenty years ago. The group met on a monthly basis, for around ten years, with the objective of supporting women to build a Christian homes for their families. A very enjoyable evening was had by all, with a bring and share supper, and lots of circulating and 'catching up'. Thank you to Esther for organising the event.

The Vicar Writes...

Meek and mild?

"Gentle Jesus meek and mild, look upon this little child." That was the first prayer I was taught as a small boy. Along with many other people, I was brought up with the "meek and mild" picture of the Son of God. This was reinforced by the paintings of Jesus hanging on the Sunday School room walls and printed in the children's Bibles – a sickly-sweet, wimpy looking man surrounded by flowers and cute animals.

Not surprisingly, many children on reaching adolescence, soon feel they have outgrown the "tender Shepherd" and reject Him in favour of more attractive heroes. Sadly, this is the image of Jesus that lingers in the minds of many adults who go through life with the notion that Christ and Christianity is a soft and sentimental thing which has nothing to do with the real world. But this is a false idea based on a false image of Jesus.

In his book "Your God is too small" J.B. Phillips highlights how inappropriate the word "mild" is when applied to Jesus. "Mild" he writes conjures up in our minds images "of someone who wouldn't say 'boo' to the proverbial goose; someone who would let sleeping dogs lie and avoid trouble wherever possible; someone of a placid temperament who is almost a stranger to the passions of red-blooded humanity; someone who is a bit of a non-entity, both uninspired and uninspiring."

But this clearly is not the Jesus we meet in the Bible.

There we see a man who fearlessly challenged the hypocrisy of the religious establishment calling the powerful Pharisees "blind guides, blind fools, snakes and a brood of vipers" to their faces; a man for whom speaking the truth was more important than making His listeners comfortable; a man so angered by the cheating going on in the temple courts that He overturned the money changers' tables; a man considered so dangerous by the authorities they put Him top of their hit list; a man with such presence that He walked untouched through a murderous crowd; a man so feared that a whole detachment of soldiers was deployed to arrest Him; a man of such courage that He deliberately walked to His death.

As Phillips says, Jesus was meek "in the sense of being selfless and humble and utterly devoted to what He considered right, whatever the personal cost; but 'mild', never!"

Burton Memorial Hall Survey

Over the next couple of weeks households and businesses in the parish, and every user group of the Memorial Hall, will receive a copy of a survey form asking what you want to see done with the Hall. You'll have the chance to say if the Hall meets or fails your needs as a resident. If you use the Hall then the Committee wants to know if it meets your needs or if it can be improved. Even if you don't use the Hall your feedback is needed... the Hall committee want to know why some people don't use it. Is it because the facilities you need aren't there or because it's not available on the days and times you want to book it? This is probably the most important activity undertaken by the Hall for many years, as any changes to the Hall will depend on the analysis of the results, so please, when you get a copy of the survey form through your letterbox don't put it aside for later, fill it in and drop it into the Survey Collection Box in the Village Store or post it back to the address on the form. Please do help the Hall Committee to make the Hall the building you want and need it to be.

Have you gone Digital yet?

Time is running out for anyone still using the old analogue TV service. Border TV has already gone totally digital and Granada TV will do so on November 4. If you still wish to watch TV you will have to do something before then. Of course you could always decide it's not worth the bother and stop watching TV altogether but you will have to give a declaration to the TV licence people who will visit to check you really don't need one. It's not enough to just not renew the licence because you aren't watching TV! Interestingly, if you don't watch live TV (i.e. only use the Watch Again directly or download for watching later) or have a digital box only connected to a Hi-Fi (there are many radio stations on Freeview as well as TV) you don't need a TV licence either, at least with current legislation! Go to the internet link below to check or declare you do not need a TV licence. You will be visited to check you don't have a TV set connected to an aerial and then rechecked after 3 years to confirm this is still the situation. http://www.tvlicensing.co.uk/information/index.jsp
